43pl membership

An Essential Participant of the
Australia and New Zealand CRC for Spatial Information

“A network of professionals”

“Recognition of a professional organisation adds strength to business”

The Australia and New Zealand CRC for Spatial Information (CRCSI) brings together over 100 organisations from the private sector, research institutes, government agencies and academic organisations who have interest and understanding in spatial information.

The CRCSI collaboratively solves complex problems of national significance for Australia and New Zealand, through a focus on research infrastructure that delivers commercially applicable end user outcomes.

43pl is a consortium of small to medium enterprises (SMEs) which are an Essential Participant of the CRCSI.

Benefits of 43pl Membership

There are a range of 43pl member benefits to grow your business. These benefits include:

- Participation in funded projects
- Building innovation and knowledge capacity
- Intellectual property access for commercialisation and internal business improvement
- Access to and support funding for PhD and Masters students through the Education Program
- Network to research, development and spatial information global connections
- Invitation to the CRCSI annual conference.

“Project involvement is flexible and collaborative”

Resources

Each 43pl member has a CRCSI Business Development Manager as the key contact for the organisation and a focal point for stakeholder engagement.

The 10 Managers spread across Australia and New Zealand ensure members develop and maintain core relationships with the CRCSI, researchers and project leaders, and the CRCSI builds its knowledge of member needs:

- Members are informed about the CRCSI research activities, research capabilities of university partners, specific potential sources of funding from the CRCSI and services on offer to members
- Member business needs are matched with the CRCSI capability or guided in the right direction
- Partner engagement plans to build on innovation needs and intellectual property opportunities.
